

The benefit for a couple to understand each other's personality

The short version

I think it was great to do the profiles (tests). It is clearly developing for a relationship to do them, whether it is a professional relationship or a love relationship!

Ulrika (51) & Johan (52)

Detailed feedback

The profiles have opened our eyes to where we have our differences. Now we are more aware of them than if we had not done the profiles (tests).

I really think it has made us more patient with our differences. We respect each other more than we probably would if we had not done the profiles.

For example, I am more driven than Johan. Now he is more patient with my ideas and the fact that some of them never get realised...

Moreover, I now know that he is "slow-moving" than me. Therefore, I don't have to resent it as much, because I know that he works that way. Otherwise I might have just thought he should try harder. Now I know that this is his way of being.

Now we also occasionally divide our tasks in the relationship according to our strengths and weaknesses.
